

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A device and method for searching or navigating in documents which are connected by links displays symbolic representations of these documents on an output unit, where a starting document is used as a reference and other documents are given a marker indicating the degree of similarity to the starting document according to a measure of similarity.